proceed to the place where we are assigned. I observed that the place is not that much employees and I realized that it was Saturday and a few workers was working. So to start the day, after ma'am arrived we immediately proceed to our work which we did not finish on the day before. So what we will make that day is a wine and sanitizer. First, we measured the ethanol and the water so that it would be equal. So the first wine we made, we mixed it a grapes powder that we brought and all of us tasted it except of the two exchange mate because they are Muslim and it is prohibited to them to drink any kinds of alcohol. We made another wine and increased the alcohol level and we changed the flavor which is Mango-orange and lemon-dalandan flavor. After making a wine we took our lunch and chatting each other while eating. Since, ma'am Joy is not yet around we walk around the PCA and bonding.

When ma'am Joy arrived we started doing a sanitizer. In doing a sanitizer we filtered the ethanol and after that, we mixed it in the perfume that we brought at first it was fail and after we tried again it was already successful. After we finished our work we clean up the places that we've used. Before we go home we took picture together with my exchange mate and ma'am Joy since, I have ride I went first to the office to log out and waited them to arrive. After they arrived we bid our goodbyes to the managers and also to ma'am Joy. That experienced is full of learning and joyful because at least we experienced to be in the shoes of other people although it is a short period of time but the essence of being a workers is much more important and hoping that we will meet again.

The Transcendence of the Ego: A Sketch for a Phenomenological Description (Routledge Classics (Hardcover))

by Jean-Paul Sartre (1st Edition, Kindle Edition)

★★★★☆ 4.7 out of 5

First published in France in 1936 as a journal article, The Transcendence of the Ego was one of Jean-Paul Sartre's earliest philosophical publications. When it appeared, Sartre was still largely unknown, working as a school teacher in provincial France and struggling to find a publisher for his most famous fictional work, Nausea.

The Transcendence of the Ego is the outcome of Sartre's intense engagement with the philosophy of Edmund Husserl, the founder of phenomenology. Here, as in many subsequent writings, Sartre embraces Husserl's vision of phenomenology as the proper method for philosophy. But he argues that Husserl's conception of the self as an inner entity, 'behind' conscious experience is mistaken and phenomenologically unfounded.

The Transcendence of the Ego offers a brilliant diagnosis of where Husserl went wrong, and a radical alternative account of the self as a product of consciousness, situated in the world.

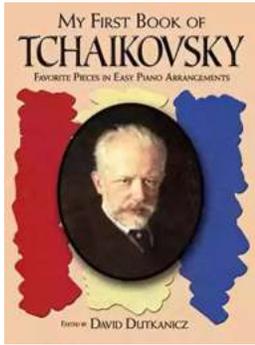

This essay introduces many of the themes central to Sartre's major work, Being and Nothingness: the nature of consciousness, the problem of self-knowledge, other minds, anguish. It demonstrates their presence and importance in Sartre's thinking from the very outset of his career.

This fresh translation makes this classic work available again to students of Sartre, phenomenology, existentialism, and twentieth century philosophy. It includes a thorough and illuminating by Sarah Richmond, placing Sartre's essay in its philosophical and historical context.
