

The Colorado Lemon Law When Your New Vehicle Goes Sour - Lemon Law 24

Have you recently purchased a new vehicle in Colorado and found yourself dealing with multiple defects and issues, despite it being brand new? If so, you might be protected by The Colorado Lemon Law.

Understanding The Colorado Lemon Law

The Colorado Lemon Law is designed to protect consumers when they purchase or lease a new vehicle that subsequently turns out to have repeated defects that significantly impair its use, value, or safety. If your vehicle meets the specific criteria set forth by The Colorado Lemon Law, you may be entitled to a refund, replacement vehicle, or monetary compensation.

It is important to note that The Colorado Lemon Law only applies to new vehicles purchased or leased in Colorado within the first year of ownership or the first 12,000 miles driven, whichever comes first. Furthermore, the law covers all new vehicles except motorcycles, off-road vehicles, and vehicles weighing over 16,000 pounds.

Qualifying for Lemon Law Protection

In order to qualify for protection under The Colorado Lemon Law, your vehicle must meet the following criteria:

- The vehicle must have a nonconformity, defect, or condition that substantially impairs its use, value, or safety.
- The nonconformity must have occurred within the first year of ownership or the first 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.
- The manufacturer, its agent, or authorized dealer must have been given a reasonable number of attempts to repair the nonconformity.
- The manufacturer, its agent, or authorized dealer must have failed to repair the nonconformity after a reasonable number of attempts.

What Constitutes a "Reasonable Number of Attempts"?

The Colorado Lemon Law defines a "reasonable number of attempts" as:

- At least four attempts for the same nonconformity
- At least two attempts for a nonconformity that poses a substantial risk of death or serious bodily injury

If your vehicle has undergone a reasonable number of repair attempts but still remains defective, it is recommended to contact an experienced lemon law attorney to guide you through the process of filing a claim.

Filing a Claim Under The Colorado Lemon Law

If you believe your vehicle qualifies for protection under The Colorado Lemon Law, you need to follow these steps:

1. Keep detailed records of all repairs and service visits related to the nonconformity.
2. Notify the manufacturer of the vehicle of the defect in writing, both by certified mail and regular mail.
3. Allow the manufacturer a final opportunity to repair the nonconformity.
4. If the manufacturer fails to repair the nonconformity or provide an acceptable resolution, consult with a lemon law attorney to file a claim.

Benefits of The Colorado Lemon Law

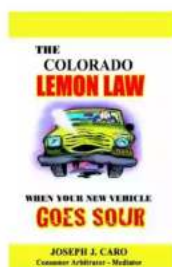

The Colorado Lemon Law provides several benefits to consumers who successfully prove their claim. These benefits may include:

- A full refund of the purchase or lease price of the vehicle, minus a reasonable allowance for use.
- A replacement vehicle of comparable value.
- Monetary compensation for incidental damages caused by the defect.
- Coverage of reasonable attorney fees and court costs.
- Protection against any negative credit reporting as a result of the lemon law claim.
