How wonderful it is to be bringing you the seventh issue of Travel Without Limits. While we hoped the start of 2022 would see the end of talk of a certain pandemic, we are still, unfortunately, feeling the effects. Despite this, our family, like so many people, continue to take every opportunity to travel when we can. We've managed to fit in several hotel stays (check out my review of the stunning Wildlife Retreat at Taronga), a trip to Port Macquarie on the North Coast and Jervis Bay on the South Coast of NSW. We are so lucky to live in a country where our outdoor options are endless, and space is abundant. In this issue we have partnered with Tourism Australia to bring you a feature that explores every Australian state and territory. It's jam-packed with accessible attractions and highlights regions that are doing some great work in access and inclusion. We hope it encourages you to get out and explore your own backyard, and if you live outside of Australia, we'd love to welcome you down under as soon as the time is right.
